

Preamble Chapters

Each of the chapters and also all together provide evidence about the reasonable period of time within which infringements of a right must be repaired. A public, unmissable, message proves the end of this reasonable period when it reported the repair of wrongdoing plus the compensation of inflicted, irreparable, damage and approval of the repair and compensation.

The issues are of the utmost importance. The subordination is impossibly to blamed on the issues. If the speedy restoration of Human Rights or effective exercise of the UN Declaration is not possible with proper communication, then war, in all forms, will do this.

Each document is available for use on loan.

Each individual civil citizen is nominated for the serious task of participating in the public scrutiny.

Civil service claims that every law is made for them to execute; They are only obliged to try to do the execution well. This is madness. Because the civil service, through the minister who represents them, participates in the legislative power to ensure the effective execution. Besides this, each law is made only for the individual civil citizen and written with sufficient precision to enable each individual to regulate his conduct.

The legislator's pseudo-right of freedom of expression is the individual civil citizen's Human Right to information from the legislator about this legislator's will and purpose with the law and the law-article. The court or tribunal is obliged to provide this will and purpose in its judgment.

The rules of "Fair Trial" are the same as those of "Fair Play", namely:

- * Only the rules that are known beforehand are valid;
- * The referee is a dead element; it must keep out of any issue of contention between the parties and observes the rules of "Fair Play";
- * Each party does not do to another party what it does not wish to be done to itself;

- * A right arises only through a preceding law-article for this right;
- * Only the disputing parties develop a solution within the valid legal rules, to the sufficient satisfaction of the parties and for ever;
- * The developed solution is for everyone and applies in all equal cases and has been made known to all, beginning by announcing it publicly;

Warning

Due to the subordination for an indefinite period of time, each chapter is the legitimation for war that must lead to the restoration of sincere democracy, primarily in the judging through legal public scrutiny and also in the legislation through the sincere representation of the entire people.
